

A great deal of research in cognitive psychology has been ment. Random or pseudorandom selection of items results in random variance that could lead to a positive bias in the F_1 estimate an “empty” model with no random effects (i.e., only one error term) as a baseline for comparison, as shown in Equation 3:

$$Y_{si} = \gamma$$
